

To Whom it may concern

I support the aim of the Carlisle Waverley Viaduct Trust to reopen the viaduct as a cycleway and footpath for use by the public. Once open it will provide a vital missing link to north – south cycling and walking routes as well as providing a useful local link for commuting and for communities which are currently severed by the River Eden.

The Trust is made up of committed trustees and members who are raising money for the numerous stages of obtaining permissions, pursuing land negotiations, commissioning feasibility studies and costed designs which should lead to bringing the viaduct back into use.

Yours sincerely

Richard Ingham
